

The Wildlife Trust of South and West Wales has for many years managed the two island nature reserves of Skomer and Skokholm. In 2006 the Trust was able to buy Skokholm Island with help from the Friends, Trust members, Heritage Lottery Memorial Fund and others

Joining the Friends of Skomer and Skokholm provides everyone (day visitors, research workers, volunteers and guests alike) with the opportunity to keep in touch with life on the islands.

A twice yearly newsletter is produced for all members and information about the islands is regularly updated on the website - www.friendsofskokholmandskomer.org

The wardens of the islands are key people in the working of the Friends. They will keep you up to date with all the news and comment on a wide range of topics in the 'Islands News' and on the website.

In February each year, a Friends reunion is held in the beautiful Tithe Barn near Cheltenham. The day includes talks and lectures on Island and Wildlife matters. The wardens present summaries of the previous year's activities. Scientists and naturalists give talks about their studies, and Island visitors bring photos and anecdotes to enliven the meeting. In addition there are talks about other islands throughout the world.

Members of the Friends can also join The Wildlife Trust of South and West Wales and by joining both together you can make a saving of £5! As a Trust member you will also receive the following benefits:

- Welsh Wildlife and Natural World magazines 3 times per year along with the local newsletter and event details
- FREE landing on Skomer Island
- Access to the early booking system for volunteering and accommodation on Skomer
- Free car parking at The Welsh Wildlife Centre in Cardigan
